Theory of change for Appalachia Funders Network

The Appalachia Funders Network (AFN) unites impact-minded public, private, and philanthropic funders with other investors. No matter their size, location, or specialization, each of our members has ideas and solutions that have potential to be borrowed or adapted.

Grand geographic, issue, and sector-based boundarien ated learning and Sector-based boundaries

Active network members

- gain a better understanding of regional needs
- build supportive and collaborative relationships
- share insights and work through questions with trusted peers

Member organizations apply regional insights to their own investments and work

Active network members

contribute to collective knowledge about practices that are shown to be effective

Member organizations elevate evidence and narratives that attract investment into the region

National funders have clearer entry points and partners to advance regional systems change in which

Appalachia is supported by a vibrant, collaborative, and responsive philanthropic sector

Active network members deepen relationships and Centering place-based organizations the most effective way to deploy capitalions define solutions with practitioners

Member organizations consider aligning resources to support placebased strategies and practitioners

Thenge percential ence and narratives to change perceptions and guide funding into the region

Theory of change for Appalachia Funders Network

The Appalachia Funders Network (AFN) unites impact-minded public, private, and philanthropic funders with other investors. No matter their size, location, or specialization, each of our members has ideas and solutions that have potential to be borrowed or adapted.

Grand geographic, issue, and sector-based boundarien ated learning and Sector-based boundaries

Active network members

- gain a better understanding of regional needs
- build supportive and collaborative relationships
- share insights and work through questions with trusted peers

Member organizations apply regional insights to their own investments and work

Active network members

knowledge about practices that are shown to be effective contribute to collective

Centering place-based organizations the most effective way to deploy capital ons onvision a function of the Appalachia is Appalachia is supported by a vibrant, collaborative, and responsive philanthropic sector

Active network members deepen relationships and define solutions with practitioners

Member organizations elevate evidence and narratives that attract investment into the region

National funders have clearer entry points and partners to advance regional systems change Member organizations consider aligning resources to support placebased strategies and practitioners

Practitioners have access to more resources and increased capacity to accelerate regional systems change

Change percential end marratives to change perceptions and guide funding into the region